ecause we are owned by the people we serve, Inter-County Energy Cooperative has a unique accountability to our consumermembers. Throughout our history, it has been our duty to respond and adapt quickly to new and changing circumstances.

Every generation brings its own unique set of challenges, from equipment shortages during World War II to costly regulations in recent decades. Through it all, Inter-County Energy has worked with fellow cooperatives across Kentucky, and the nation to advocate for at-cost and reliable electric service for you.

The last few years have been full of challenges. And in this annual report, we would like to share a few examples of how Inter-County Energy is responsive to those needs with the best interests of our local communities always top of mind.

At our core, Inter-County Energy Cooperative is responsive to consumer-members we serve because we are led by fellow co-op members. Every member of the Inter-County Energy board of directors is a member of this co-op, democratically elected by the membership to represent the interests of all members, not special interests or outside agendas. Inter-County Energy board members are your neighbors, not some corporate or activist types who live hundreds or thousands of miles away.

We are proud of our board and grateful for their service. In addition to their supervision and guidance of Inter-County Energy, board members receive important education and training, so they are prepared to deal with the complex world of electric service.

From ice and snowstorms, to flooding and tornadoes, 2021 was one of the most challenging weather years in Kentucky history. Inter-County Energy Cooperative was responsive to these challenges.

Of course, these natural disasters came amid the second year of COVID-19. Though everyone is ready for the end of the pandemic, it is the responsibility of Inter-County Energy to both comply with laws and regulations and protect the health and safety of employees and members. The co-op did this by:

- temporarily closing office locations to the public.
- transitioning some workforce to remote work to reduce the risk of exposure to COVID-19 to both members and employees.
- shifting crew rotations.
- morning briefings to limit interaction among crews.
- instructing crew members to drive separate vehicles to and from job sites.
- issuing lineworkers face masks made of the same fire-resistant materials as their shirts
- advising members not to approach crews to avoid potential exposure.
- sharing consistent messaging on social media, the co-op website and in Kentucky Living.
- adjusting the annual meeting to accommodate safety restrictions.

We know from our safety culture that complacency is a threat, so while our team worked to preserve member access to Inter-County Energy Cooperative, we also remained intentional about following safety protocols.

Being responsive to this crisis also means addressing its economic implications. While maintaining the financial stability of Inter-County Energy, our board and staff have continued to work with members who face financial uncertainty, connecting them with resources and helping them stay current on their bill rather than racking up large balances.

Following the cooperative principle of "Commitment to Community," Inter-County Energy and our employees support our members and their charitable efforts through:

- employees volunteering for local charities/civic event.
- donations to Heart of Kentucky United Way.
- giving back through our Christmas Blessings program.
 volunteering at Special Olympics, the Ronald McDonald House and Salvation Army.
- in-kind support, such as helping repair or restore lighting in parks and replacing a weather alert siren.
- scholarships for students in each director district.
- sponsoring students in the Kentucky Electric Cooperative Youth Tour experience.

Inter-County Energy is responsive to the needs of local businesses and works to attract new employers, such as the new Diageo Distillery in Lebanon. With some of the most competitive electric rates in the country and our record of reliability and resilience, we have a great story to tell.

We are grateful to the people who built Inter-County Energy in 1937 and everyone who has contributed to the stewardship of our co-op ever since. They all were responsive to the challenges and opportunities they faced. We are also grateful to the 27,000 consumer-members we serve in 12 counties in central Kentucky. You are the reason we exist, and we pledge to be responsive, reliable and resilient as we work to serve you and these communities, we all call home.

Thank you for letting Inter-County Energy Cooperative serve you, and feel free to reach out to us anytime you have a question.

COMMUNITY-FOCUSED Electric cooperatives are different than other types of energy providers. We are led by consumer-members just like you. We were built by the community we serve. We still belong to the community. That's the cooperative difference!
